Editorial – World Savings Day

The World Savings Day was established on October 31, 1924, during the 1st International Savings Bank Congress (World Society of Savings Banks) in Milan, Italy. The Italian Professor Filippo Ranzizza declared this day the “International Saving Day” on the last day of the congress. In the resolutions of the Truth Congress it was decided that ‘World Thrift Day’ should be a day devoted to the promotion of savings over all the World. In their efforts to promote thrift savings. It is also worked with the support of the schools, the clergy, as well as cultural, sports, professional, and women’s associations.

Representatives of 29 countries wanted to bring to mind the idea of saving to the worldwide public and its relevance to the economy and the individual. The World Savings Day is usually held on October 31 except in countries where this day is a public holiday, since the idea is for the banks to be open, so that the people are able to transfer their savings into their account.

The World Savings Day was not born out of nothing. There had been some examples of days that were committed to the idea of saving money in order to gain a higher standard of life and to secure the economy, for example in Spain where the first national thrift day was celebrated in 1921, or in the United States. In other countries, such as Germany, the peoples’ confidence in savings had to be restored since many of them had lost their savings in the German monetary reform of 1923.

After the Second World War, World Thirt Day continued and reached the peak of its popularity in the years between 1955 and 1970. It is particularly in Asian countries, such as in the ASEAN countries because of its geographical position, and there lies strategically placed to act as a land bridge between mainland India and the ASEAN countries because of its great potential for increasing India’s trade with ASEAN countries through Pansang Pass. Under Indo-Myanmar negotiations, there can be fruitful exploited by creating well integrated and class intoxicated as well as transport. Therefore, the visit to border trade point to study the setup and functioning of border trade point at Moreh, Manipur will be of immense importance for shaping the Border Trade policy.

Finger Millet Thresher cum Pearler

Chandra Kumar Singh, S.M.S (Agronomy)
K.V.K. Tawang
Arunachal Pradesh-791014

Finger millet, being one of the important millet crops in Arunachal Pradesh, is grown both for grain and fodder purposes. The crop is well adapted to very poor and marginal uplands where other crops cannot be grown successfully. In the traditional method of threshing and pearling requires more time and drudgery and the farmers want to get rid of millet cultivation. The use of machine among marginal and small farmers will save their time and energy for other alternatives of livelihood.

It works on the principal of impact and shear on the grain. The threshing drum is provided with six leather flats on the six M.S flats to generate mild impact, shear and abrasive action for threshing, de-huskling, pearling and polishing of the grain. A series assembly is attached with the threshing housing to enable easy placement of sleeves of different size for different operations. Optimum threshing and pearling efficiency is obtained at threshing drum speed of 900rpm with crop ear heads at moisture content below 12% at the time of threshing. The Threshing capacity of machine is 40-60 kg grain/hour and pearling capacity of finger millet is 60-90 kg grain/hour.
